17-0065-FOIA	Stout, Ray	-	6/17/2017	6/19/2017	Documents regarding the former PCS 1384 named Eufaula in 1956 -- which was sold to Western Contracting Corporation of Sioux City, Iowa, on April 29, 1958. It was bought from Western by a private citizen in the San Francisco Bay area, who was later joined by my late father and three other men in refitting her, renaming her M/V Kanaloa, and sailing her on a commercial venture to the South Sea for several years until 1965. Specifically, any advertisement or announcement of this Navy call for bids or offer for sale (as well as Western's later offer, which of course the Navy didn't oversee), which I understand was of four former PCSes in the area, including 1380. 17-0067-FOIA	Stout, Ray	-	6/27/2017	6/28/2017	1. What is the proper gesture for a U.S. commercial vessel to make with its flag on deck (e.g. maybe lowering it completely for five seconds, etc.) when passing a military vessel, including a foreign vessel, either at sea or in a harbor? How long must it be lowered? How close must the vessels come to each other to make the commercial vessel subject to this rule? Does the military ship have to respond in any certain way? What's the underlying meaning (e.g. simple respect, or deference, granting right-of-way, etc.)? Is there any kind of punishment for a commercial vessel that fails to make the proper gesture? 2. If a U.S. ship is registered with a foreign country and is issued a flag of that country yet doesn't display that foreign flag, is it subject to any penalty? If so, what penalty? 3. I understand Honduras now has "one of the most liberal open shipping registry regulations" (maybe not verbatim) in the world; was that the case in 1961 as well? 4. Do Merchant Marine vessels fly a different flag than their national flag? 5. Through the U.S. Coast Guard Vessel Documentation Center, I've gotten documentation documents for vessel of official number 284783, and those encompass the period 1961-65. Vessels were registered by the Bureau of Customs through 1965 when the job was taken over by the Coast Guard, where it remains today. Would you be able to provide me with any documents on this oil screw -- a former WWII-era submarine chaser-- from 1965 to 1968, the year when it was sold by its private owners to a man in Acapulco, Mexico?	8/17/2017	Closed
